Hi Kathy,

My apologies, but I am needing to submit the attached, updated report for our dissolution filing.

The summary balance info remains unchanged, however, I have needed to reclassify previously-stated liabilities as in-kind contributions, thereby increasing the amount of liability repayment that has been issued to Melissa, and reducing her loan forgiveness amount. Essentially, the total amount of in-kind contributions remains the same, but the burden for a portion of in-kind contributions has been transferred from Melissa to another individual contributor.

These changes are needed to remedy a situation involving a liability reimbursement check that was previously distributed to an individual (Jodi Prosek), but was not cashed. I recently learned that Jodi has declined to be reimbursed and would prefer that her expenses be treated as in-kind contributions. However, when I closed out the campaign bank account on March 27th, I was unaware that Jodi's check had not been cashed, and that the funds which were allocated toward reimbursing her expenses were not depleted from the account. Thus, the cashiers check that was cut for Melissa included these funds ($279.23) in addition to the funds that should have been remaining in the account if the check had been cashed ($1,396.38).

As such, the total amount of liability repayment issued to Melissa was $1,675.61, and I have needed to update our reporting information to account for this, and to reclassify the liabilities owed to Jodi Prosek as in-kind contributions.

I again apologize for this oversight. Could you please confirm that this updated report sufficiently serves to fulfill our campaign filing obligations?

Régards,
Liz
